About this guide

Who is this guide for?

This guide is for council staff responsible for managing the selection and appointment of district licensing committees (DLCs). The guide will be useful whether you are new to the process or you have had previous experience. It may also be of interest to elected members of council and prospective DLC members.

How will this guide help you?

This guide will support you to:

- understand the range of skills that a DLC needs
- run a robust selection and appointment process
- appoint a DLC with the necessary knowledge, skills and experience
- give effect to the Sale and Supply of Alcohol Act.

The Sale and Supply of Alcohol Act 2012 (the Act) aims to minimise harm from alcohol by managing the way it is sold, supplied and consumed. The Act introduced a system of alcohol licensing intended to enhance community participation in licensing decisions.

DLCs have an important role under the Act – to consider and decide on all applications for alcohol licences within their local areas. DLCs need the right mix of skills to do their job well.

Councils are responsible for selecting and appointing DLCs. This is an important first step in ensuring that DLCs can carry out their role effectively. This guide will help you run a robust selection and appointment process. You can tailor the guidance to fit your local circumstances, the size of your community and the number of licensing applications you receive.

Section 8 provides resources such as examples of advertisements, job descriptions and interview materials that you can use and adapt for your council.

1. A brief introduction to DLCs

This section provides background information on DLCs and relevant legal requirements under the Act. It covers:

1.1 What DLCs do

1.2 The legal status of a DLC

1.3 Relevant sections of the Act

1.1 What DLCs do

Anyone wanting to sell and supply alcohol to the public in New Zealand must apply to their local council (territorial authority) for a licence. DLCs consider and decide all applications for licences and manager's certificates (s 187 of the Act).

DLCs are established under the Act and administered by councils. Each council must establish and maintain a list of DLC members. They can have their own list or have a combined list with one or more other councils (s 192).

A DLC considers the application, agency reports, evidence and submissions presented to it against the criteria in the Act and any relevant case law. It then objectively evaluates the evidence, determines facts, forms opinions and draws conclusions to make its decision.

Within their local areas, DLCs decide applications for:

- new and renewal applications for on-, off- and club licences
- special licences
- new and renewal applications for manager's certificates
- opposed acting or temporary appointments of managers
- variation of licence conditions

- temporary authorities and temporary licences
- orders to vary, revoke, suspend or cancel a special licence.

1.2 The legal status of a DLC

A DLC is a committee of council (s 200(1)), is administered by the council, and may include councillors. However, it is an independent inquisitorial and impartial body. In DLC hearings the parties or their representatives cannot question other parties or witnesses of other parties, this will be the role of the DLC. In addition, DLCs are not required to publicise or run their meetings in the same way as other council committees (s 207 of the Act and part 7 Local Government Official Information and Meetings Act 1987 [LGOIMA]).

DLCs have the powers of a commission of inquiry under the Commissions of Inquiry Act 1908. As a commission of inquiry, a DLC has a quasi-judicial role. DLCs have powers and procedures similar to those of a court of law or a judge and are obliged to objectively make findings of facts and draw conclusions from them. This means, for example, that a DLC can issue summonses requiring the attendance of witnesses before it or the production of documents. It also has the power to rehear any matter that it has determined (s 201(4)). DLCs should not be subject to influence from the council (or from any other third party). A council can, if it wishes, be represented and participate in a DLC hearing (s 204). However, a council cannot override a decision of a DLC.

A decision of a DLC can be appealed to the Alcohol Regulatory and Licensing Authority (ARLA) by any party to the decision. Decisions of ARLA can be appealed to the High Court, then the Court of Appeal, and up to the Supreme Court.

1.3 Relevant sections of the Act

211	Decisions to be given in writing

2. Who can be on a DLC?

This section explores who can be on a DLC by considering:

2.1 What the Act says

2.2 What this means: good practice guidance

2.2.1 What is good standing?

2.2.2 What is relevant knowledge, skills or experience?

2.2.3 Detailed guidance on essential and desirable knowledge, skills and experience

2.1 What the Act says

Councils must have a list of DLC members

Councils must establish, maintain and publish a list of people approved to be members of that council's DLC. Councils can establish a combined list with one or more territorial authorities.

Members must have: "experience relevant to alcohol licensing matters" (s 192(2)). Members can be elected councillors or people from the community. Members are included on the list for a fixed term of up to five years and can be reappointed for one or more periods of up to five years.

Councils can appoint commissioners

Councils can appoint a commissioner to any of its DLCs. A commissioner has all the functions, powers and duties of the chair (s 193(1)) and can be appointed as a chair (s 189(2)).

The Act requires a commissioner to be someone who: "is of good standing in the community and has the necessary knowledge, skill, and experience relating to matters that are likely to come before the committee" (s 193(2)).

Commissioners are appointed for a fixed term of up to five years and can be reappointed for one or more periods of up to five years.

The composition of a DLC

Each DLC, which is selected to consider an application, is made up of a chair and two members. The chair can be either an elected member of the council (from the approved member list) or a commissioner appointed by the chief executive, on the recommendation of the council.

2.2 What this means: good practice guidance

The Act does not define or set out:

- good standing or the necessary knowledge, skill and experience relating to matters that are likely to come before the committee (required for commissioners)
- the experience relevant to alcohol licensing matters (required for members).

In the absence of such detail, this document provides some guidance to councils about good standing and the types of knowledge, skills and experience that would contribute to the effective running of a DLC.

2.2.1 What is good standing?

A commissioner must be someone who "is of good standing in the community and has the necessary knowledge, skill, and experience relating to matters that are likely to come before the committee" (s 193(2)).

The Act does not give a definition of "good standing in the community". When considering good standing you could think about whether an applicant:

- is of good character eg, do they have any convictions? Have they been bankrupted?

- has a good reputation and is held in high regard in their community
- holds positions of leadership within a community eg, school board of trustees or iwi authority
- belongs to a professional organisation that upholds professional standards of ethics.

2.2.2 What is relevant knowledge, skills or experience?

In considering what might be relevant knowledge, skills or experience, it is useful to think about the skills that DLCs need to carry out their role effectively.

DLCs must understand alcohol-related harm and how it can be minimised

All members must have an understanding of the nature of alcohol-related harm – what it is, how it impacts communities (particularly high risk communities), and how it can be minimised. While alcohol-related harm is often perceived as direct harm, DLCs need to understand the deeper and more complex layers of impacts on communities. Alcohol-related harm is not just about rubbish and noise. It is also about the broader health, social, economic and cultural impacts (both direct and indirect) of the sale, supply and consumption of alcohol, particularly inappropriate or excessive consumption of alcohol.

DLCs need experience in legal processes

There are different views about the need for legal training and skills on DLCs. Many applicants have legal representation for hearings, so having a DLC that is suitably experienced to address matters of law raised by lawyers is necessary. Some councils value legal expertise and only have lawyers on their DLC. Other councils don't believe that formal legal expertise is essential for a well-functioning DLC and have no lawyers at all. In these cases, chairs may have experience in legal and regulatory processes such as the Natural & Built Environment Act 2023 and councils provide legal advice or support to their DLC.

DLCs need skills to facilitate community participation

One of the key drivers behind the Act was to enhance community participation in licensing decisions. DLC practices can have a big impact on the willingness and ability of the community to take part. DLCs need skills and experience to work effectively with community participants in hearings.

When selecting and appointing your DLC you might want to consider:

- the skills and experience that members have in working with communities or running hearings in a way that makes community members feel welcome. This is particularly important for members of the community appearing as objectors who may not be familiar with judicial processes
- whether members have an understanding of:
 - the diversity of the community/communities that the DLC is responsible for
 - how alcohol-related harm impacts disproportionately across different communities and population groups
 - differing patterns of alcohol-related harm in the local community
 - barriers that some communities face to participating in the licensing and hearings process and how these might be addressed
- whether members are available to attend hearings in the evening, at different locations, or via video conferencing
- whether your chair and members have appropriate skills (or can demonstrate a desire to upskill) in te reo Māori (language), pronunciation, and tikanga (customs).. You can provide support for your DLC members to build this capacity.

You might also think about how the diversity of your DLC reflects the community it serves, in particular those most affected by alcohol-related harm.

The table below provides some detailed suggestions for relevant knowledge, skills and experience.

2.2.3 Detailed guidance on essential and desirable knowledge, skills and experience

It provides good practice guidance on essential and desirable knowledge, skills and experience for DLC chairs and commissioners (C), and members (M).

We have not differentiated between chairs and commissioners in this table. Chairs, regardless of whether they are elected members or appointed commissioners, need to have the same knowledge, skills and experience to run effective hearings and decision-making processes.

3. Who can't be on a DLC?

This section explores who can't be on a DLC by considering:

3.1 What the Act says

3.2 What this means: good practice guidance

3.2.1 General principles for decision makers

3.2.2 Managing conflicts and bias

3.1 What the Act says

You cannot appoint a commissioner (s 193(3)) or a list member (s 192(5)) if:

- 1 the person is:
 - a police officer, or
 - a Medical Officer of Health, or
 - an alcohol licensing inspector, or
 - an employee of the territorial authority
- 2 the council believes that the person has, directly or by virtue of his or her relationship with another person, such an involvement or appearance of involvement with the alcohol industry that he or she could not perform his or her duties without actual bias or the appearance of bias.

Chairs who were appointed to the DLC as an elected member of council cannot remain on the DLC if they are no longer an elected member of the council. However, the council could choose to reappoint them as a commissioner if the individual has the necessary knowledge, skill and experience relating to matters that are likely to come before the committee (s 193(2)).

3.2 What this means: good practice guidance

DLCs make important decisions on applications for licences under the Act and, in doing so, must run a fair process. Councils must ensure that the people they appoint to their DLC can run a fair and objective decision-making process.

The Act specifically prohibits the appointment of anyone to a DLC who could not perform their duties due to bias or the appearance of bias as a result of their involvement, or the appearance of their involvement, in the alcohol industry.

However, considerations of bias and conflict of interest are not restricted to those with industry involvement. Every member or official of a public entity has professional and personal interests and roles. Occasionally, some of those interests or roles overlap. This is almost inevitable in a small country like New Zealand, where communities and organisations are often close-knit and people have many different connections. Elected members of council have extensive involvement in their communities and a great deal of local knowledge. This knowledge can help inform the decision-making processes of the DLC; however, this closeness to the community can also give rise to a conflict of interest or a perception of bias.

Conflicts of interest sometimes cannot be avoided, and can arise without anyone being at fault. They are a fact of life. But they need to be managed carefully. Even where no conflict of interest exists, councils and DLCs must be careful to avoid any perception of a conflict of interest. DLCs need to be impartial and be seen to be impartial.

This section sets out some general principles for decision makers and some specific guidance on managing bias and conflicts of interest.

3.2.1 General principles for decision makers

Decision makers must uphold natural justice

Natural justice is about fair process. It means that any public decision-making body, including a DLC, must be independent and impartial and its procedures must be fair and transparent. Natural justice can be enforced by the courts, administrative tribunals or ombudsmen. Determining whether a decision complies with natural justice will generally depend on whether a fair and proper procedure was followed in making it.

Decision makers must avoid bias and the appearance of bias

Decision makers must be unbiased in all procedures, when holding a hearing or making a decision. A decision maker must be impartial and must make a decision based on a balanced and considered assessment of the information and evidence before them without favouring one party over another. Even where no actual bias exists, decision makers should be careful to avoid the appearance of bias.

Decision makers must avoid conflicts of interest

The Office of the Auditor-General defines it the following way: “Put most simply, a conflict of interest can arise where two different interests overlap.”

In the public sector, there is a conflict of interest where a member’s or official’s duties or responsibilities to a public entity could be affected by some other interest or duty that the member or official may have.

The other interest or duty might exist because of:

- the member’s or official’s own financial/business interests or those of his or her family

- a relationship or other role that the member or official has or something the member or official has said or done.

3.2.3 Managing conflicts and bias

Involvement in the alcohol industry – what might this mean?

Examples of involvement in the alcohol industry that might lead to real or perceived bias or conflicts of interest for DLC members could include (but are not limited to):

- having a financial interest in a licensed premises
- having family members with interests in a licensed premises
- having close personal or working relationships with licensees
- being the property owner of the site of a licensed premises.

People who have had involvement in the alcohol industry will have knowledge, skills and experience that would be useful on DLCs. For example, ex-licensees would bring knowledge of the practical application of the Act in licensed premises. In this case, you might consider how much time has passed since they left their role. It is not easy to prescribe a specific length of time – it should be long enough that the person is unlikely to be dealing with parties they have worked closely with, but recent enough that their knowledge and skills are still relevant.

If you are thinking about appointing someone with previous involvement with the industry, then consider:

The nature of their relationships

- Who does the individual have professional relationships with?
- Could these relationships lead to bias or a perception of bias?

Awareness

- Does the person concerned have an awareness of their potential bias and whether/how it could be managed?

The observer test

- Would a reasonably informed, objective observer consider that the individual could perform their duties without bias or a perception of bias?

Managing bias and conflicts of interest in the selection and appointment process

Run a robust selection and appointment process

The best way to avoid and manage any concerns about bias and conflict of interest of DLC members is to run a robust selection and appointment process. See Section 5.3 for more details.

Document your process

Document your selection and appointment process. If the council is challenged about an appointment (or the decision of a DLC), you will have documentation which can be made publicly available (subject to necessary privacy redactions).

Keep good notes of interviews, assessments of candidates, panel decisions and of course council decisions. Document the consideration of any potential bias or conflict of interest and the resulting conclusions. Make sure that all documents are filed in the council's electronic filing system and can be easily retrieved at a later date.

Managing bias and conflicts of interest in DLC decision making on specific applications

There are many ways that bias can be managed in the context of a specific application including:

- assessing the relationships between DLC members/chairs and applicants or parties to a hearing
- members excluding themselves
- appointing an outside commissioner if required
- allowing for concerns about bias prior to a hearing, for example:
 - all DLC members/chairs could have a photo and short biography on the council website
 - when an application is advertised and a committee is selected, the parties could be sent a link to the biographies
 - council could provide a timeframe for parties to state any concerns around bias of members prior to the hearing
- members making a declaration at the start of the hearing that they have no conflicts. Parties can object and be heard in 'chambers' if required
- the DLC referring the case to ARLA (s 170(a)).

For more information on managing conflicts of interest see the Office of the Auditor-General's guide – Managing conflicts of interest: Guidance for public entities.

4. Considering your local context

Each territorial authority must establish and maintain a list of DLC members. You can have your own list or have a combined list with one or more other territorial authority. Each territorial authority must have at least one DLC; larger metropolitan centres may have more than one. This section of the guide focuses on your local context and what you need to think about in selecting, appointing and administering your DLC. It considers:

4.1 Local needs and demands

4.2 Achieving the right mix

4.3 Timing of appointments

4.1 Local needs and demands

DLCs in large metropolitan areas regularly deal with high numbers of applications. While the majority are still dealt with 'on the papers' (by the chair), these DLCs may have more than 20 public hearings a year. Depending on the number of members on the list and the practices of the council, these members are likely to be involved in many hearings. Some councils in larger cities have several DLCs and a pool of chairs that can rotate.

In contrast, many smaller towns or rural areas have only a few applications per year and even fewer public hearings. Councils in smaller provincial and rural areas may have only one chair (either an elected member or a commissioner), who takes part in every hearing. If you only appoint one chair, you will need to appoint a competent deputy chair who can cover the chair if they are on leave or unwell.

Where neighbouring councils have shared lists of DLC members, DLCs can cover multiple council areas. This can be useful in areas where there are few applications and members have less chance of being involved in a hearing and keeping their skills up to date.

You need enough members to cover each other's holiday or illness or any conflicts of interest. Four members must be available for each hearing: three for the hearing and one alternative in case of illness.

Things to think about:

The demand in your community

- What is the population of your city or district? Is it likely to change significantly in the next five years?
- How many applications do you generally receive each year? Is this likely to change significantly in the next five years (eg, as a result of rapid urban growth)?
- How many hearings have you had each year in the recent past? Is this likely to change significantly in the next five years?

The make-up of your DLC

- How many DLCs do you need to meet the demand in your community?
- How many members do you need?
- How many chairs/commissioners do you need?
- What should be the ratio of chairs/commissioners to members?
- Do you need your own list of members or could you share with neighbouring councils?
- Do you have enough members to cover illness, leave and conflicts?

4.2 Achieving the right mix

Consider the overall make-up of your DLC. It is unlikely that any individual, whether they are a chair, commissioner or list member, will bring all the skills, experience and qualities needed. Rather, it is important that you get the right mix of skills in the pool.

Elected members, commissioners and community members can bring different things to a DLC. You can use a combination of each to build a DLC that reflects the needs and skills of your community and council.

Different options include:

- No elected members – you can have commissioners as chairs and community members as list members. This approach can de-politicise the process, emphasising the independence and separation of the DLC from the elected members. It provides for elected members to advocate more broadly for their community on alcohol issues, ensuring no conflict of interest.
- Commissioners and elected members – if your elected members have great understanding of the local community but little experience in alcohol licensing, a commissioner can provide that knowledge and help build local capability.
- Elected members and community members – if you have elected members with the necessary skills and experience but you want to reflect your community (or particular parts of it) or broaden your skill base, you might include list members from the community.
- Only elected members – some councils value the local knowledge that elected members bring and so only have elected members on their DLCs. This can work if your elected members have the skills required for a DLC to function effectively, such as knowledge and experience of legislation, regulation, alcohol licensing, hearings and decision writing. However, this could increase the likelihood of conflict of interest, raise perceptions of bias, and reduce advocacy options for elected members to participate in hearings. The need to be available for hearings may also impact on their elected member duties.

4.3 Timing of DLC appointments

4.3.1 Tenure

Councils can appoint DLC members, chairs and commissioners for up to five years. They can be reappointed for one or more periods of up to five years.

A DLC member can resign at any time and can be removed for inability to perform functions, neglect, bankruptcy or misconduct.

Chairs who were appointed to the DLC as an elected member of council cannot remain on the DLC if they are no longer an elected member of the council. However, the council could choose to reappoint them as a commissioner if the individual has the knowledge, skills and experience relating to matters that are likely to come before the committee.

4.3.2 Timing of appointments

You need to think about when you will appoint members and for how long. You can predict the timing of some appointments – such as when a term ends or following local government elections. Some others will not be as predictable, for example if a member resigns during their term.

Some councils stagger their appointments or appoint members for different lengths of time so that terms do not all end at the same time. This can help with succession and maintaining knowledge within the DLC, but it can also be very resource intensive.

You need to start recruitment of new members several months before the expiry of an outgoing member. See Section 5.3, which outlines the selection and appointment process in detail.

5. Running a robust selection and appointment process

Your selection and appointment process must be robust, transparent, objective and well managed. This section provides guidance to help you achieve this. It covers:

5.1 Who should be involved?

5.2 Attracting a wide pool of skilled candidates

5.3 The process in detail

5.1 Who should be involved?

5.1.1 Recruitment staff

Recruitment staff should run and manage the selection and appointment process. The staff who are usually involved include regulatory managers, DLC advisors and hearings advisors. Inspectors should not be involved. Recruitment staff should advise elected members on the selection and appointment process, run the selection process, and provide recommendations on appointments to council.

5.1.2 Elected members

Different councils involve elected members at different levels. Whatever involvement elected members may have, the key is to maintain transparency and objectivity in the process.

Many councils keep elected member involvement to a minimum: elected members are informed of the process at the start and approve staff recommendations for appointments at the end. Elected members have no active involvement in implementing the process or making decisions about who is appointed.

Other councils involve elected members at particular points in the process. For example, some councils who have elected members on their DLC include them on interview panels. Any elected members involved in the selection process would need to follow the selection criteria and assessment process in a transparent and objective manner, as with other members of the selection panel.

Remind elected members of the potential risks of not following good process (challenges to the appointment process and associated legal costs, reputational risks, a DLC without the necessary skills, poor decisions by the DLC, etc).

5.1.3 Members of iwi or Māori committees

Several councils have provided for an iwi or Māori voice in the selection and appointment process. You could do this by involving members of your local iwi, hapū or Māori advisory board/committee in: determining selection criteria; interviewing candidates; shortlisting; or making recommendations for selection.

5.1.4 External contractors

Some councils have used an external contractor to run the entire process. This can assist in providing transparency and independence from the council. However, this option can be costly and so may not be available to all councils.

5.2 Attracting a wide pool of skilled candidates

Section 2.2.2 outlined the skills, experience and knowledge that DLCs need. These include an understanding of alcohol-related harm and how it can be minimised; experience in legal processes; and skills to facilitate community participation.

Your DLC can be more effective if members have a thorough understanding of:

- the local community in which the DLC operates including the local iwi, hapū, and Māori communities
- the local community's concerns and expectations around alcohol and alcohol-related harm
- the nature of the licensing environment and alcohol-related harm in the community in which the DLC operates.

Try and attract as wide a range of candidates as possible. You might need to be proactive to attract candidates that have the necessary experience and reflect the community the DLC serves. Organisations that you might approach to seek a broader range of candidates could include:

- hapū or iwi organisations
- community health providers – including Māori, Pacific or migrant health providers
- legal associations – such as Community Law or the Māori Law Society
- youth organisations
- women's organisations such as the Māori Women's Welfare League or Rural Women New Zealand
- Māori Wardens.

5.3 The process in detail

1. Potential review of any appointment policy
2. Preparation and planning
3. Seeking council approval for the process
4. Establishing an appointment panel
5. Developing your documentation
6. Advertising, notifying and proactively seeking out candidates
7. Screening your applicants and assessing eligibility
8. Carrying out the interviews
9. Selecting your candidates and considering the mix of your DLC
10. Providing recommendations to council on appointments
11. Confirming contracts for services.

1. Potential review of any appointment policy

If your council has an appointment policy, consider whether it needs a review before you start your selection and appointment process. If it does need to be reviewed, work out how long this will take, who will need to be involved, and whether council will have to sign off the final policy.

2. Prepare and plan

How many DLCs do you need?

Think about the demand in your community and how the make-up of your DLC can respond to this demand. You need an idea of how many DLCs you will need and whether you can share with neighbouring councils. Think carefully about the ratio of chairs/commissioners to members. For more information and questions to consider see Section 4.1.

Elected members, commissioners, or community members?

Elected members, commissioners, and community members can bring different things to a DLC. You can use a combination of each to build a DLC that reflects the needs and skills of your community and council. Section 2.2.2 looked at the skills needed for a DLC and the different options for getting these. Think about the skills that exist among your elected members and whether you need or want to seek candidates from the community.

Consider your process

Think ahead of time about how you will run your process:

- Who will run the process?
- Who else will be involved in the process and at which stages?
- Who will make decisions?
- Do you need to proactively seek out candidates? When and how will you do this?
- Who will be responsible for drafting key documents?
- What is your timeline?
- How will you communicate with people involved in the process?
- What will the process cost and is the money allocated in your budget?
- When does council need to make decisions or be informed?

Appointing elected members

Many councils appoint elected members to their DLC following local body elections as part of the process of assigning committee roles within council. The appointment of community members/commissioners then happens on a different timeframe. Elected members are not usually interviewed in the same way as community members, so some of the steps set out in this process may not apply when appointing elected members to DLCs.

3. Seek council approval for the process

Draft a paper to council outlining your proposed process before you start it. You should cover:

- the number of DLCs, chairs, commissioners and members you propose to appoint
- when and how elected members will (and won't) participate in the process.

4. Establish an appointment panel

Based on the decisions made by council in Step 3, establish your appointment panel.

5. Develop your documentation

You will need several documents for applicants as well as internal documentation of the process. It is critical that you document your process accurately in case you are challenged at a later stage. You may want to involve your appointment panel in this step of the process, or they might lead this step.

For applicants you will need:

- advertisements
- job descriptions
- FAQs (optional).

In your communication to potential applicants you need to be clear about the role(s), the skills and experience required, eligibility criteria and conflicts of interest, along with likely time commitments and remuneration.

For your own processes you will need

- criteria for selection
- interview questions
- scoring sheet for candidates
- reports to council.

You can find examples and templates for these documents in Section 8 of this guide.

6. Advertise, notify and proactively seek out candidates

Seek out candidates through a range of channels including:

- your council website
- online job and career sites
- newspapers
- council's community and business networks
- iwi, hapū and Māori networks
- proactively seeking out potential candidates (see Section 5.2 for more information).

7. Screen your applicants and assess eligibility

Once applications have been received, the appointment panel will need to screen them for eligibility and skills. See Section 3 for more information on eligibility and Section 2.2.2 for more information on skills.

8. Carry out the interviews

The appointment panel will then carry out the interviews with the chosen candidates.

9. Select your candidates and consider the mix of your DLC

The interview panel will select their preferred candidates. As part of this process they will need to consider the overall mix of skills and how these match the skills required of a DLC. See Section 4.2 for more information on achieving the right mix.

This step will also cover: short-listing; acceptance of role; drawing up the contract for services.

10. Provide recommendations to council on appointments

Draft a paper to council with recommendations for appointment of members and commissioners. You might go through the relevant council committee before going to full council.

11. Confirm contracts for services

The final step in the process is to confirm the contract for services with members. Some councils only have contracts with list members who are not elected members. Others have contracts with all list members including elected members.

6. Dealing with challenges

Following the best practice set out in this guide will support you to run a robust, transparent and objective selection and appointment process. However, despite your best efforts, you are likely to run up against problems or face risks to your process.

This section provides some ideas for dealing with these risks and challenges. It is a good idea to talk with colleagues in your council or other councils if you are facing risks or challenges: you don't have to have all the answers.

Risk to the process/ Challenges	Options
Difficulty attracting skilled candidates	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Proactively seek out skilled candidates through relevant organisations or contacts • Consider appointing a commissioner • Consider having a combined members' list with neighbouring councils. This can provide a greater pool of skills and expertise to select from • Think about training or mentoring to upskill your members (including regional and national training or mentoring) • See Section 2.2.2 for information on skills required
Your DLC does not have a good understanding of your community and the impacts of alcohol-related harm on it OR Your DLC does not reflect the community it serves	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Consider the current and projected demographics of your community. Is your community changing? If so, how? • Proactively seek out skilled candidates through relevant organisations or contacts to address gaps • Think about who is applying to your DLC and being appointed (and who isn't). Do you need to review your processes and documentation to attract different people? • Consider having a combined members' list with neighbouring councils. This can provide a greater pool of skills and expertise to select from • See Section 5.2 for more ideas
Politicisation of the process/ Councillors not supporting staff recommendations for appointments	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prepare and plan your process (see Section 5.3) • Have a DLC Appointment Policy which sets out the process for appointments and reappointments • Draft a paper to council outlining your proposed process before you start it. Clearly set out the roles of councillors and staff from the beginning. Seek council agreement to the process • Remind elected members of the potential risks of not following good process (challenges to the appointment process and associated legal costs, reputational risks, a DLC without the necessary skills, poor decisions by the DLC, etc)
Too many members, chairs or commissioners	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prepare and plan your process (see Section 5.3) • Consider the demand for alcohol licensing in your community and the make-up of the DLC to provide for it (see Section 4.1) • Clarify your community's requirements in your initial paper to council • Start small and add members later if necessary. It is easier to add members than remove them

7. Providing ongoing support for your DLC

Councils are responsible for resourcing and supporting DLCs so that they can fulfil their obligations under the Act effectively. The level and nature of support may vary across councils depending on their size and capability. All councils should provide an induction for new members.

Learning can be formal and structured (with associated costs) but it can also be informal and unstructured, for example meeting neighbouring DLCs for a morning tea or going out with Police and licensing staff on weekends. Different people have different learning styles: some like a written, formal document to take away and read; some prefer an informal chat. Talk to your members about their learning styles and what they would find helpful.

More experienced DLC members could provide mentoring to new members on a range of topics. Support could also come from council staff such as the DLC secretary or members of the council's legal team. Councils can hire external people to provide specific technical guidance, for example on hearing procedures, the assessment of evidence and submissions, and writing decisions.

Understanding the impact of alcohol-related harm on different communities is important for all DLC members. You might consider providing training opportunities for members to gain a deeper understanding of this, for example through access to health equity training, or attending a local hospital's emergency department.

In some regions, councils coordinate shared training for DLCs from across the region. Councils also hold regular training and invite DLCs from other areas to attend. This is a great way for DLCs to upskill and network.

Training support can also come from national bodies such as Ko Tātou Local Government New Zealand and Health Promotion, Health New Zealand – Te Whatu Ora or the national DLC network. It is worth finding out about resources and training opportunities that these groups provide.

How to work out your Applicant Total Score:

First work out the weighted score, after which you can tally the Total Score. Follow the instructions in the header of the scoring table and example table below. Finally, add the total scores together to determine the Applicant Total Score.
